Lip Stick Red Is New Shade Used for Tunic

—By MME. LISBETH

The tunic frock illustrated shows, first, the distinction of utter simplicity, and second, the effectiveness of embroidery alone for trimming. Developed in any preferred material in any chosen combination of colors, it would be an effective costume.

As shown it is built of crepe de chine in what is described as a "lip stick red." This is none of your illusive, pastel shades, but a decided, altaring red which would match the cheeks of the athletic girl when out for a winter hike. It is embroidered in black and is worn over a black satin slip.

This is the type of frock that the woman of "too, too solid, flesh" should adopt. See that it is cut straight, not too much fullness but enough to fit not too snugly.

Lakes to Gulf And Sea Water Ways Boosted

Middle West Plans to Force Through Two Great Projects

By W. Y. FERROL
 CHICAGO.—Although powerful interests, mainly eastern, are still adamant in their opposition to the projects, mid-western organizations are preparing to jam approval of the Great Lakes-Ocean and Great Lakes-Gulf waterways through Congress.

The two projects would link up the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence, North Atlantic ports and Europe, with the Mississippi river system of 15,000 miles, with New Orleans and other gulf ports, with South America and the Orient.

Its proponents say it would lower the cost of moving foodstuffs, lumber, coal and manufactured products.

Western farmers would load their wheat at Duluth in the same vessel that would unload it in London or Bombay; St. Louis, Pa-

EX-BARKEEP HITS GOSPEL TRAIL IN "ROLLING CHURCH"

Herman Fries, ex-saloonkeeper, now a candymaker, will start from his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., in a "rolling church" on an evangelistic tour with the intention of visiting every state. The auto-church has an organ, pews, kitchen, dining room, berths, lavatory. Believing that no man can be convinced of religion's worth if he has an empty stomach, Fries plans to feed down-and-outers on the way. Hence the kitchen.

Rich Prisoner Runs Business From His Cell

Herbert H. Bigelow, Manufacturer, in Jail, But Still Directs His Plant

By Central Press

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 25. Herbert H. Bigelow, millionaire, one of the largest manufacturers of calendars, placards and other printed matter in the United States, is now directing his large business from a cell in the federal penitentiary here.

Bigelow is one of the 188 trusty prisoners confined at the penitentiary. He was received last August to serve a sentence of two years on conviction of having made a false return in his income tax report. Upon his reception at the prison he was assigned to the electrical shop, and within a short time was made an outside trusty. No privileges not accorded other trusty prisoners are given Bigelow.

Somewhere back in the years Bigelow, prison officials believe, must have made a study of electricity. They do not believe that in the short months he has been employed as the assistant electrician he could have gained the knowledge of his work which he possesses. He is rated as a good electrician and apparently is deeply interested in the work.

Prison Record Spotless
 One day is very much like another with the millionaire assistant prison electrician. Beyond the restrictions which the prison throws about him, Bigelow might easily imagine himself employed by any first-class electrical shop in St. Paul.

Many persons come to see him, and his mail is, perhaps, the heaviest at the prison. Twice each week he receives visits from heads of various departments of his vast enterprise, and with these he crowds hours into the time allotted in which to talk over and give directions for the conduct of his business affairs. His hours when not employed are devoted mostly to answering his huge correspondence relative to his business affairs.

So far his record in the prison has been spotless. He has violated no rule. He is accepting his punishment in a philosophical way and makes no complaint. In the eyes of prison officials he is the type of ideal prisoner.

The human side of the prison also holds deep and fascinating interest for the St. Paul manufacturer. For years the responsible head of a large body of men in his employ, he has studied conditions at the prison and used his position as an employer of labor to help his fellow prisoners. And this coming Christmas there will be no empty stockings in the prison. Bigelow will see to that.
